

Press Release Andy Kutsch

Andy Kutsch achieved a high level of success in UnderwaterPhotography.com photo contest 2007.

This photography contest is the longest running and one of the most prestigious online. If you want to make a name for yourself this is THE place to do it. Many other internationally acclaimed photographers have launched their photo careers here over the years. Every January a panel of judges select the best images entered in our online photo contest from the previous year. Gold, silver, and bronze medals are awarded for the top three from each category in order of merit.

The judges comprise of industry professionals (and last year's World Champ). They are unpaid, non-affiliated, and (of course) cannot enter themselves.

One of our medals is the reward for all the hard work Andy Kutsch put in chasing those great shots in far-flung destinations. It's the most coveted prize because it says you succeeded in the most competitive environment there is, against the top talent of the moment. Andy Kutsch was up against 6439 entries in this category to get placed.

If you are a magazine (or other publication) you can download the hi-rez version here This content may be reproduced free of charge to promote our contest only. Any other use requires a fee be paid to the photographer

Silver Medal

Andy Kutsch Profile

I am from Germany

My Website My Website

Member since: Wednesday, April 26, 2006

I am using a Nikon D80 in a Subal Housing. Additionally i am using a Subtronic 3000 Flash . My favourite Lenses are the Nikon 60mm macro and the Sigma 17-35 Wideangle zoom, but i also use a Sigma 24-70mm Zoom Lens. Most of my pictures are done in the Adriatic Sea, but also occassionally i take pictures in the Maldives an of course some other destinations.